THE Trustees of the Transylvania University, in communicating to the public that the ensuing session will begin on Wednesday the 29th of this month, have the satisfaction to state that, during the past year, the most gra tifying proofs have been afforded of the impro ndition of the institution. The number of students greatly exceeded that of any prior year since the establishment of the Universit and their progress in education, as evinced the late commencement, was highly credital. to their diligence and to the ability of their instructors. These are are happy results of the just confidence of the community in the Pre-sident, professors and tutors, and of the system of regulations prepared, with great care, for the government of the College, after consulting the experience of the most highly re-puted seminaries in the United States. It was ot to be anticipated that this system, in all its parts would command unanimous approbation; and accordingly one or two of its provisions have been the subject of some animadversion. It has been objected, that the vacation is too long, and that it would be better to divide it between different parts of the year. The en-tire period of vacation is less in this college than in any other whose by-laws the Trus trees have had an opportunity of examining It was considered preferable to assign the whole of it to the warm months of the summer and September, when a certain degree of relaxation is necessary, than to appropriate any portion of it to the winter, the most favorable season for intense study. Nor will the time be ost by the industrious student, who will employ in a review of his past studies, in prepara tions for the future, & in acquiring ornamenta accomplishments. The practice varies, in this respect, in other colleges, according to the peculiar condition of the society where they hapben to be situated. In William and Mary the racation, much longer than it is here, is altogether in the summer and early part of the fall.
The trustees, in all the regulations which they have adopted, having had the object constantly in view of rendering the University useful and respectable, will not fail to change this or any other regulation which shall be found incompatible with that chieft expenses. ompatible with that object, or contrary to the wishes of the public, whose convenience the will be always anxious to consult and promote. They have afforded an evidence of this disposition by repealing the requisition, upon stu-lents entering in advanced classes, to pay the es, without incurring an expense not to be expected, it was deemed desirable to secure them some certain place to which they migh go without the danger of intrusion. The dat to perform the service, which is enjoined by the rule is, considered by the faculty as oner-ous, and from it would be glad to be exonerated. Nothing was further from the intention of the trustees than to propagate, by means of this regulation, the peculiar tenets of any sect;

ttached to various denominations of religio would find it just as difficult to agree amon themselves, as the great mass of the community do, in any particular sectarian principles.—

The trustees feel it a solemn and primary dat to preserve the institution open alike to all denominations. It is the common property of the public. It ought not to be devoted to the

The rule which requires the performance of divine Service at least once every Sabbath in the chapel of the University, has also been the subject of some observatious. It is in the following terms: "It shall be the duty of the President, or, in his absence, one of the professors, to perform divine service, on every Sabbath, at least once, in the Chapel of the University, to such officers and students as may choose to attend; and it is particularly enjoin. choose to attend: and it is particularly enjoin ed upon the studehts to attend public worship somewhere on the Sabbath." received by him per the same vessel.

"I have just received a letter from a respectable merchant in Trinidad, informing me that Barcelona, on the Spanish Maine, has been captured by Col. Inghs, (or English) with about 1000 British troops, and Col. Usher, with 400 Germans and 400 Creole troops ;and that a fleet under Brion had captured about 20 vessels of different descriptions, belonging to the royalists, some of which were armed. The Nymphe, the largest vessel, escaped by ast sailing, and got into Cumana, which place is beseiged by the Independent squadron and the army which took Barcelona. All the women belonging to the Independent army were in a transport which fell into the possession of the oyalists. Barcelona and Cumana are the only towns of much importance, in point of size and population, between Angostura and Caraccas. Angostura is the head quarters of the Independents, and Caraccas that of Morillo, the Royalist chief. The taking of Caraccas is was in a state of great forwardness, but the great objects to which the Independents aspire; and to that end it is necessary for Barcelona and Cumana to be secured by garrisons of their own forces

THE LEGISLATURE.

The proverbial obstinacy of the acting governing, it appears by the last Argus, has so far yielded, as to consent to convene the legislature at an earlier period than usual, if a majority of the members elect will signify their wish for such a step. We hope the members will, with avidity, avail themselves of this kind concession of his excellency, and thus contribute to consummate the views of those who have successfully suggested the course to him. It is, perhaps, the last good intention that will ever flow from the mind of the acting go vernor towards his country, and 'twere pity, in a ten fold degree, it should be lost. We devoutly hope the legislature will be assembled; because muc is to be expected from them in alleviating the distresses of the state. There are many who differ with us on this subject; but engage them in argument, they adopt the convenient Socratic mode of reasoning, and never advance any i dea or fact, except evidence of the ease with which deep and profound political wisdom can be affected. All the causes of pressure, they flippantly say, are to be traced to Europe. No blame whatever can be attached to the American community. Our country is incapable of bringing misery upon itself. Well, we heartily wish these were the facts.-But we must beg pardon of our readers, for not being able to view the reasons of our present miserable condition, on so extensive a scale, as entirely to exclude America from participation in fault.

We are inclined to believe much might be done at home. Our political economy can be greatly aided by legislative means. The people can be protected from the griping oppression of the rich and callous nabob, who is constantly seeking to know where he can perfect the most agonizing ruin. There are men of this description-and in Kentuc ky too-who have filled their coffers by the most unwarrantable speculations :and each additional hundred dollars acquired and hoarded up, have operated, in a certain degree, to deaden those sensibilities, kindnesses and charities of human | South American patriots, noticed. nature, which the supreme ruler of the universe originally implanted in their bosoms. Individuals apart, the wretch ed state of our banking system-bottomed, as it is, upon the ignoble design of practising fraud and corruption, requires some interposing hand. The national councils should be foremost to correc great evils. But if they are timid and its importance requires. To these who backward, the people and the states only take a superficial glance at the submust interfere and become their own ject, it seems extraordinary expense physicians. Protection can be given to bestowed by government without any the citizens of each state by the enact- defined object. We think, however, ment of proper laws, with proper reme- it may be safely affirmed, that there are dies and restrictions. A course of this but few great movements of governkind would encourage a retrenchment | ment, which will turn out of mroe imof expenses-would open our eyes to portance to the nation. The protection the extravagant indulgence in foreign of our great western waters from the luxuries, which has hitherto marked our character-and would inspire us with a pride for the products of our own manufactories.

Besides these considerations, there is nothing to be lost by a convention of the legislature in November. It is a pleasant season-and by commencing the session thus early, the recess at Christmas, which nearly always takes place, would be suspended.

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE LINE.

The legislature of Tennessee is now in session at Murfreesboro; and, as many had, anticipated, the boundary line be tween this state and that, was among the first subjects introduced into that body & appears, as it often before has done, to excite considerable warmth among the members. A Mr Jetton commenced the business, by introducing the follow ing motion: Resolved, that the governor be and he is hereby requested to lay before this house, any communications he may have received from the Governor of Kentucky, respecting the boundary of the two states, since the last session of the legis-

Which was very tamely opposedwhen

Mr. GRUNDY rose, and continued-"That all the information which could be " gathered on this subject, ought to be " put into their possession with as little " delay as possible Correct informa-"tion, (said he) as to the limits of the " state, was indispensable to the formast tion of the country acquired, into dis-"tricts. The state of Kentucky, he was " induced to believe, was acting, at this " time, in running the line between the states. If the country in dispute was

" session was necessary. If future inves-"tigation shewed that the claims of this state were well founded, he apprehended, the regaining possession of the dishuted territory, if parted with, would be attended with much more difficulty " than was generally expected."

Mr. Grundy was followed by Mr. Mitchell, who, with more temper, observed, that he "hoped the house would "act on so important a subject, as the dispute between this state and Kentucky, with the most dispassionat " coolness; that their deliberations would " be as calm as the high merits of the "question required. He apprehended already been elicited. He well remembered that during a former session, "he had witnessed, and was sorry to observe it, that members of the best information the state afforded-men who on all other occasions, he had noticed as being cool and deliberate, had on this subject evinced a degree of animation, which to him had proved alarmas having a tendency to endanger the peace of the two states."

Upon the suggestion of a Mr. Miller, that the governor had already promised to make some communication on this subject, the mover, with apparent reluctance, suffered his motion to lay on the table for the present, and so it rested at the date of our last advices from Tennes-

From all that can be gathered, from the past conduct and present temper of the legislature of Tennessee, it appears that she intends to obtain from Kentucky, all the territory which she can ; -and as our state is immensely interested in the result of the contest which exists with Tennessee, we propose, for the information of the public, to take hereafter, a brief view of the origin, rise, and present state of the controversy.

ARKANSAS.

We received this week, from the new territory of Arkansas, an account of the proceedings of the citizens of the town and neighborhood, held on the Fourth of July last, together with the toasts drank on the occasion. It is so late now, that their publication would scarcely be gratifying. Their preparations were very considerable, expecting to meet, on that day, the executive and judicial officers of the new government. Among the rest of the toasts, we feel happy in seeing our CLAY, our Jounson, and the

MISSOURI EXPEDITION.

We copy from a Philadelphia paper into the Gazette of to-day, some very judicious remarks concerning the Yellow Stone expedition. Many of the eastern prints notice this splendid undetaking in a style and manner which invasion of British trading companiesand British traders-and the establishment of an immense line of fortifications, which it is presumed will be done, reaching from the Missouri to some point on the upper Mississippi, by which the extensive country, yet to be settled west of the latter river, will be secured from the cruelties of savage incursion, are objects worthy of the 'youthful," but emphatically "maturd" secretary of war :- and we greatly rejoice that Kentucky has it in her power to boast of some of the prominent agents who are carrying the views of the government into execution.

We believe that most of the outcries against the Yellow Stone expedition, which are occasionally found in some of he western newspapers, and sometimes o be heard in street conversations, are our patriotic Johnsons, and a deep regret at the frailty of human nature. It ould not have been expected by the ost of western soldiers who witnessed, on the 5th of October, 1813, the valorous achievements of two HEROES of the Thames, that in 1819, any number of individuals would be found in the very same country which they shed their blood to protect, ready to do them all the pecuniary, moral and political harm, which lander can inflict, or prejudice im-

"This magnificent undertaking of the government is rendered doubly so by the adoption of steam boat navigation Perhaps if this description of convey ance is better suited to any one section of the world than another, it is to the vast, and, I had like to have said, interminable water-courses of the western difsion of our country. "The current' thwarting course" ceases to be any bar rier to the progress of this description of vessels; and 'tis there the current flow; and 'tis there human labor, and sweat and toil, must have been expended for ages, had not this unrivalled design been perfected, and by the movement "that a great deal too much warmth had of its own interior, suspended all this toil, and bid the laboring boatman look on and admire this victory over the force of current, and his own freedom from the labors of conquering it.

"The certainty, as well as celerity of steam boat navigation; the cheaper rates of transportation which it insures; tne satisfaction and comfort ef passengers, all unite to make it an object which must continue to rise in importance, in the estimation of the people of these vast regions, and all having intercourse with them. "So far as the government of the United States is concerned, in its intercourse with that portion of its territory, (and it is deeply concerned) steam boats must continue to command its attention. For all the purposes of transportation, whether of army or of Indian supplies, or munitions of war, this mode is the best. It is the best, whether the progress of the expedition, the economy in the expense or the certainty of the period or periods of arrival at the points of destination, be consulted. But these, however imporant in their place, are, in this stage of he experiment, far outweighed in a national point of view (and this ought never to be lost sight of.) This view embraces the encouragement of one of the grandest and most useful inventions of man, which, whilst it delights the admiration of our countrymen, and contributes to the advantage and comfort of the travelling parts of them, attracts at the same time, and rivets the attention of the old world to this wonderful contrivance; and sets monarchs at work to imitate the efforts and developments of a REPUBLICAN genius.

"Who does not wish success to the whole scheme! Who does not think of the Herculean undertakings of the Johnons with admiration? Who does not wish success to these men, not on account of their enterprize, only, but of their valor, their patriotism? Not a that there were twenty at the meeting ism, but practical and pure; such, I ed it. mean, as enveloped them in victory, and has given renown to American intrepidity throughout the world; and which can never be forgotten till time shall moulder history down to the dust, and Moravian town, and from the banks of our Thames. "When this expedition was fitting, I now and then heard of " detention :" of apprehension," from their occasional recurrence, that the expedition must be abandoned. I thought I saw in some a half-willingness to abandon the steamboat part of the design, and adopt the old song of " row brothers, row." spirit, which, in such a work, became Atkinson, and Jessup, and Johnson, were there. And I doubted not but the ing which rested on the shoulders of the third, that suitable allowance would be made for any accidental mishaps, to which such extended and diversified operations were liable, and which no mind out an Omniscient one could foresee: and no power, but Omnipotent power, ould immediately control.

To my great gratification, the whole, at last, moved off. But what if they could only have made ready this year, would only have been like acting under orders for the next. As to the losses or evil consequences of such a delay, they would have been trivial, compared with the abandonment of the steam boat part of the great design. The year, however, is not lost; nor the steam boat part of the scheme abandoned; but the ohnson has passed Franklin in all the grandeur of her mysterious movements; full of health and spirits, pointing, as she goes, the attention of the thousands who witness her wonderful progress, to the government of a country, of which too many of the hapless beings who bepredicated upon political animosity to hold her, know too little, but who are approximating every year, nearer and rooted envy of their high standing with from which will be perceived the majesnearer, to the point of a full observation, he American government. If such be ty and mildness of our laws, the justice he motives, we can only express our and humanity of the government. And these must strike them with lessons of admiration and affection, that will eventuate in their attachment to them all. Our youthful, but already ripened secretary of war stands identified, specially so, with this grand expedition; unler his guidance, we may look for the finest consequences of which it is sus-Frank. Gaz.

From the Illinois Spectator A statement of facts relative to the proceedings of a mob of slaveholders a Boon's Lick, in July, 1819. By Humphrey Smith. At a camp-meeting held near Frankin, in the Missouri territory, in May of fune last, in a conversation with a Mr.

as it was contrary to the discipline of the church; at which he was offended. Se veral slaveholders came near to defend their cause, who said that God made negroes for slaves, and white men for masters, or he would not suffer it to be so. By this time the preachers and hearers were all collected round, to hear what was said. No one said any thing on the part of freedom lut myself. Severa spoke in favor of slavery. A great fellow came up to us, and swore he would kill me-that he had killed two, and would kill me also. One of the preach ers counted the number of oaths he took The preachers came up to me, and requested me to be silent. I gave then assurances that I would. Some swore they would not suffer a man to stay in the country, that said so much against slavery; the principal part of which was, that I wished the restriction of congress might take place.

On the 17th of July, about 12 o'clock at night, a man called at my door for entertainment. I got out of my bed and went to the door. He asked me my name, which I told him. I then discov ered that he had his face partly masked He instantly caught hold of my right hand, and hauled me past the corner of the house. At this instant, three or four men rushed from behind the corner with clubs, and beat me on the head, and I fell to the ground. It was some time before I recovered my recollection when I found them hauling me towards the fence. I caught hold of the fence and hung to it with all my strength. All this time, some were beating me, and some endeavered to pull me over the ence. My wife came to my assistance. and threw a swingling-beard at the man who had me by the hand, and broke his old. My wife was struck across the ye with a club. We broke through ne rioters, got into the house, and bolted the door. A short time after, a great shout was heard in the woods, thirty or forty rods from the house. I then fled into the cornfield, and staid until all was quiet. Upon returning to my bed, I fould not sleep, in consequence of the wounds I had received. The next day, nany of my neighbors came to see me, Bull. and said they were astonished at such! conduct. Some of my friends warned me of another party that intended to make me a visit upon the same business A few days after this riot, a camp-meetng was held about four miles from my place of residence. I neglected attendng it, fearing some accident might take place. I was informed by a friend, that one of the slaveholders declared to him, wordy valor; not a boisterous patriot- who would have beaten me, had I attend-

New-York, Sept. 20. Capt. Webb, of the Schr. Athens, ar rived last night in the very short passage of 28 days from Cork, has obligingly favored the Editors of the New-York Gazette with Cork papers to the 22d of August. RIOTS AT MANCHESTER.

On Monday the 16th of August, the Reform meeting was held at Manches-There were not less, at this Meeting than 100,000 people, collected from all the villages round for 20 miles .-Orator Hunt was the leader. The approach of the different bodies of the deluded populace, of which it was constituted, was made with all manner of outward display, in order to impose forbearance on the civil authorities. Banners and bands of music added their effect to the march of the different divisions of the refomers, which was conducted with something like military precision. Among the former were several bearing the full leave it at this cision. Among the former were several bearing the following inscriptions and devices.—Let us die like men, and not devices.—Let us die like men, and not devices.—Let us die like men, and not little, and we hope it may further improve. They made a full the spirit of the civil magistrates. They made a full charge in full gallep, amongst the crowd, to the platform on which he was placed, cut it down with their swords, and took Hunt and all on the stage prisoners. They then made a second charge to disperse the people, in which hundreds were thrown down and rode over. Important Occurrence.-The meeting of the Reformers, at Manchester, had been dispersed by several regiments and corps of cavalry; and between forty and fifty men, women and children, wounded; and three men killed. The meeting it was estimated, consisted of 70,000; and was headed by Mr. Hunt, who was taken into custody. All the flags, caps of liberty, &c. were taken, destroyed, or carried off in triumph by the cavalry. Two of the cavalry were wounded. The women who carried banners, it is said, fought most courageously to defend them, and one was cut down with the banner in her hand. Some accounts say the riot act was not read before the cavalry made their charges. Among the flags, was a black one bearing 'Universal Representation or Death.' The meeting is described in the Liverpool papers as very orderly, and Hunt had only addressed them, when they were dispersed. The wounded carried from the field filled six coaches, three carts, and three litters; five women, dreadfully wounded, were among them. The meeting was held the 16th Aug. This application is made, because congress Duniap William Dolettel Thomas capt. Holdridge, who sailed from Liverpool on the 12th ult. the editors of the Gazette have received the London Courier of the evening of the 9th, two days later than by the arrivals at Boston.

This application is made, because congress have lately made provision to discharge those claims; and it is to be hoped, that the soldiers here addressed, will not for a moment neglect the debt of gratitude which they owe to those humane and patriotic citizens, who, at a bottom of the said o moment of extreme peril to themselves, saved Eddleman Pet all the prisoners redeemed, from the suffer. ings and horrors of Indian captivity, and mav from certain death.

The following persons are particularly re-uested to attend to the above.— Isaac L. Baker, Gustavus M. Bower, Spen-Isaac L. Baker, Gustavus M. Bower, Spencer Shumate, Julius Turner, Jesse Green, Alexander Montgomery, Nathl. Chinn, Frederick M. Nill, Wm. Cook, Wm. Peacock, Abraham Estes, Robert Ellis, Henry Spoon, Peter Winchell, Wm. FOR THE KENTUCKY GAZETTE. To ******

THERE IS A WORD. There is a foul inhuman word, That all do know and all have heard, And felt too well the rancorous pain, That always follows in its train.

This little word I more detest, Than ague chills, or spasmed breast;-It every hour of life annoys, And damps our hopes—our peace destroys.

There is no curse on earth below, So dreadful as this little " NO." For when our hopes are raised full high, And we behold sweet pleasure nigh,

This little word, so foul and stale, Comes like a pestilential gale: Drives every kindred joy away, And ushers in the gloomy day.

Full well I know, in former days, When EDGAR sung a maiden's praise, On Elkhorn's banks at midnight hour; At noon-tide in you fragrant bower;

And viewed himself clompleatly blest, Each silly doubt and fear suppress'd; Looked on the world with proud disdain, And dubbed himself the fair one's swain.

This little word, this word of woe; This pest to peace, this dismal "NO," Drove every hope and joy afar, Beyond the mother Polar star.

For when he press'd the maiden's hand And told his tale in accents bland; Implored, entreated, wept and "cried In lovelora accents, be my bride."

The maiden then, with proud disdain, Laughed at his tears-and mocked his pain And cried " poor fool, thy suit forego, For I shall always tell thee "NO."

O worst of words, to thee I owe Each hour of pain I undergo; To heaven I'll raise my fervent prayer, That thou mayest never enter there.

And O! may this inhuman word, That all do know, and all have heard, Be scourged and banished far away, Beyond the shades of genial day.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market st. next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Yohe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to this house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others, however, he deems it proper to state that its situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of backbuildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit of a free and uninterrupted circulation of air, and what will give them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, so constructed on new sale tas effort elegant. structed as not only to afford pleasant pro-menades, but easy means of escape in the e-vent of necessity from any sudden alarm of fire. The great western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travellers' horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some further improvements now making, added to his own unremitted exertions to please, the Subscriber confidently hopes for, and very respectfully solicits, a share public patron
